If you are looking for a copy of the above standards, then we can probably help, but not by offering a free download. Please read on.

ISO standards are all covered by copyright, so any copies you download for free are either pirate copies or (like this document!), probably not a full copy of the standard that you are seeking. The free downloads I've seen also tend to be old, out of date copies, so I'd suggest that you check that they are actually valid. They probably aren't.

We have been helping companies gain certification against ISO and BS management systems standards for over 25 years. I've fed comments into the committees writing the actual standards, and spent almost ten years working for a leading certification body, responsible for auditing companies against the standard concerned and awarding (or otherwise) their ISO certificates. We are "gamekeepers turned poachers", so have unique insight on not only how to get your company approved, but also make the standard actually benefit your everyday business life. This is more than can be found in a free download.

So, if you're looking for rapid and concise implementation of an ISO-compliant management system, written specifically for the needs of your business, please be in touch via:-
